

List of Contributors

Corinne McSpedon is a Senior Editor at the American Journal of Nursing. She earned an M.A. in Women's History from Sarah Lawrence College and her historical writing focuses on women's health, public health, and environmental issues.

Dr. Mary Dillard is the Director of the Graduate M.A. Program in Women's History and a Professor of African History and Global Studies at Sarah Lawrence College. As a social historian, Dr. Dillard teaches courses on gender, healthcare, and education in Africa, in addition to a method course in oral history.

Gen Eickers is a Postdoc at the University of Education Ludwigsburg, Germany. After finishing their Ph.D. in philosophy at the Berlin School of Mind and Brain, Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, and Freie Universität Berlin, they continue to work at the intersections of philosophy of mind, social psychology, and social epistemology, specifically addressing questions around social norms, emotion, and gender.

Dr. Lynn Deboeck is an adjunct assistant professor of theatre and gender studies at the University of Utah. he earned her PhD in Theatre and a Graduate Certificate in Women, Gender & Sexuality Studies from the University of Kansas. Her research interests include gender in performance and representation and maternity.

Sanghmitra S Acharya is a professor at the Centre of Social Medicine and Community Health, School of Social Sciences, Jawaharlal Nehru University, New Delhi, India. She was Director, Indian Institute of Dalit Studies, New Delhi, during 2015-18. She has been a Visiting Fellow at CASS, China (2012); Ball State University, USA (2008-09) and UPPI, Manila, The Philippines (2005); East West Center, Honolulu, Hawaii (2003) and University of Botswana (1995-96). Research interest include access to health, social epidemiology, marginalization and discrimination.

Mala Mukherjee is Assistant Professor, Indian Institute of Dalit Studies, New Delhi. Her research interest include urban issues, marginalization, digital technology and gender. She has published in national and international journals of repute and presented papers in India and abroad.

Chandrani Dutta is a Freelance Researcher. She has worked in development organizations. Her research interest include urban processes, gender and development. She has published in national and international journals of repute and presented papers in India and aboard.

Robyn Dudic is a MA student of English Studies at the University of Cologne, and has concluded her BA's in English and American Studies, as well as in Comparative Literature at the University of Innsbruck. Her research focuses, on the one side, on the intersection of literary studies and linguistics and on the creation, generation, and transformation of meaning; and on the other side, on issues of gender and Otherness, with an overall focus on the works of Shakespeare. She is currently an intern at gender forum, an Internet Journal for Gender Studies and working on her first publications.